Bentley and Rovinsky wed, Dec. 26, 2011

Lizzy Bentley, daughter of Rick Bentley and Dr. Caryn Vogel of Indianapolis and Avi Rovinsky, son of Rabbi Mike and Mrs. Selina Rovinsky of St. Louis were married on Dec. 26, 2011 at the Indianapolis Museum of Art (IMA).

Rabbi Yisrael Gettinger, Congregation B'nai Torah, read the ketubah (wedding contract); Rabbi Tvi Ron, Yeshiva Netiv Aryeh, Jerusalem was mesader kiddushin (person who recites the blessings of betrothal under the chuppah [wedding canopy]).

The couple met in Washington Height in New York City and will reside in New York City.

The chasson (groom) is currently pursuing a doctorate of physical therapy (DPT) from Touro College in New York. The kallah (bride) graduated from Stern College, the woman's division of Yeshiva University where she earned a bachelors degree in English and computer graphic design. Lizzy is social media director for the Aleph Society in Manhattan.

The wedding took place on the Rosh Chodesh Teves, the 7th day of Chanukah. It was a beautiful chasena (wedding) with many friends and family from near and far. Rav Tvi Ron and Reb Yoel came from Avi's former Yeshiva in Israel, Netiv Aryeh. Daniel Bentley, brother of the bride, flew in from Jerusalem where he currently is attending Netiv Aryeh. Guests included former Indianapolis resident and close friend of the kallah's family, Eliyahu Rubinovich from Har Nof, Jerusalem.

Many of Lizzy and Avi's friends with whom they studied in seminary and yeshiva in Eretz Yisrael (Israel) flew in for the occasion. A large group of the chasson's family friends came from the Rovinsky home city of St. Louis.

Dina Cohen and Nancy Landman coordinated the event. Beth Abaldo led Nourish Events Catering and provided an amazing kosher dinner. A popular band, Soul Farm from New York led the fraylech (joyful) dancing.

Highlights of those entertaining the chasson and kallah included Avi's father, Rabbi Mike Rovinsky and his son Yossi who danced with their hats on fire (see photo), jugglers including Reb Yari from St. Louis and Sam Zitin who added swords to his juggling repertoire.

May the Indianapolis Jewish community be zochus (merit) to celebrate many more simchas (happy occasions) together! **‡

65th Wedding Anniversary

By PEARL JOFFE Advice from the loveworn

When the publisher of The Indiana Jewish Post & Opinion suggested I write a column about happy marriages, (I've been "at it" 65 years), I was flattered by the question but terrified about how to answer. Longevity doesn't necessarily guarantee success in the marital department. But, because "fools (like me) rush in where angels fear to tread," I am grabbing the gauntlet and have come up with the following sage advice: "I don't know!"

I do remember vividly, however, my own nuptials. It was Sun., Dec. 8, 1946, and the weather was warm, so warm that my uncles who had driven in from Chicago took off their jackets. I was to be married at my parent's home in front of the fireplace. There was a problem: the chuppah. Usually four men held up the four poles but at past weddings I noticed much sagging down the middle of the canopy. To the rescue came my father's carpenter who made the chuppah stationary for the event. It worked so well that Rabbi Samuel Fox who performed the ceremony asked to borrow it for subsequent weddings. Dad was happy to oblige and it became one of the Rabbi's permanent fixtures.

One of my aunts, who lived on tree-lined (see Joffe, page 7)

Editorial

I wrote the following two years ago and I recently checked with Jeffrey H. Patchen, president and CEO of The Children's Museum (TCM) of Indianapolis to get an update about it. The good news is in italics at the end.

Just after Thanksgiving on Nov. 30, 2009, a new sculpture was formally dedicated outside in front of The Children's Museum of Indianapolis (see photos this page). Depicting a page from the diary of Anne Frank, it was commissioned for the museum's new Anne Frank Peace Park. On the top of the sculpture is the following quote from Anne's diary.

"[Peter and I] looked out at the blue sky, the bare chestnut tree glistening with dew, the seagulls and other birds glinting with silver as they swooped through the air.... 'As long as this exists,' I thought, 'this sunshine and this cloudless sky, and as long as I can enjoy it, how can I be sad?'"

~ Anne Frank, February 23, 1944

The 150-year-old horse chestnut tree that stood outside the Secret Annex and which provided comfort for Anne Frank was suffering from a fungus disease. The Anne Frank Center in New York contacted TCM about the incredible opportunity to receive one of just three initial saplings being grown in Holland from the dying Chestnut tree in Amsterdam. Of the other two, one is to go to the White House, and the other to the Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C.

In addition, TCM is slated to receive the saplings that will be planted at eight other locations to care for them during their "quarantine period" in their BioTech Lab up in ScienceWorks at TCM. The quarantine period is three years.

"We are very excited about this opportunity to receive and care for these world treasures," Jeffrey H. Patchen, remarked at the dedication...."It is our hope that the Anne Frank Peace Park and Diary Sculpture will serve as a remembrance of the tragedy of the Holocaust, but also as a symbol of Anne's hope and our hope for the future."

After the quarantine period, one sapling will be planted in the Anne Frank Peace Park next to the sculpture of her diary in front of the Museum. This has been made possible through the generous support of local Holocaust survivors Gerald and Dorit Paul, and the sculpture was created by Michael Donham of Accent Limestone & Carving in Spencer, Ind.

These were the same artists who created the Seven Wonders of the World for The Children's Museum and the County Walk on pieces of stone at the Indiana State Museum, both outside the buildings.

After the dedication, I spoke with Patchen and mentioned that there is a new Holocaust museum in Skokie, Ill., that opened last April [2009].

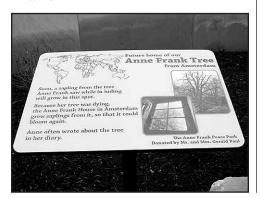

"What about a sapling for them?" I asked him. "Surely there are other places around the country that deserve to have one."

"I wouldn't be concerned about a shortage. They are way ahead of us in Holland," he commented with a grin. "It is rumored that saplings have been planted from that Chestnut tree and are growing all over their countryside."

Jennie Cohen, December 21, 2011

The saplings can be planted permanently in March, 2013. We will celebrate Holocaust Memorial month in April of that year. We currently have 8 trees to go to the various sites and also use as back-ups in case there is a problem with one of the trees. We are working with the Anne Frank Center (coordinating the distribution of the trees) to create a joint website with information about all of the sites. We have sent a note to Yvonne Simmons, their director about her thoughts on doing public relations related to the saplings. Our Chief Technology Officer also knows about the web project. We plan to create a unit of study about the trees to distribute when the trees are planted.

Jewish Learning Institute Class

The class is titled, "Money Matters: Business Ethics." Money Matters will present Judaism's approach to practical economic dilemmas and monetary quandaries that we face daily in both our personal and professional lives.

The goal of this course is to provide a sensitive, fair, and unshakable economic paradigm grounded in 3,000 years of tradition and practical experience – an ancient yet fresh spin on how we view ethics of money.

Students will emerge from this course with an understanding that only a divine economic system can ensure unequivocal justice while recognizing the virtue in each stakeholder's position. Money Matters will show how the Torah's sharply discerning yet holistic rulings inspire us with the confidence to confront any ethical economic dilemma.

We're still accepting attendees for remaining classes. It is held on six Tuesdays, and began Jan. 24, 2012, from 11 a.m.–12:30 p.m. at the Schusterman Chabad House, 1112 Oakwood Trail in Indianapolis or from 7–8:30 p.m. at the Arthur M. Glick JCC in Indianapolis. Instructor: Rabbi Mendel Schusterman. For more information: call 317/698-6423 or email JLI@lubavitch indiana.com.

In the JCC Art Gallery Dale Bernstein: Vanity Abandoned

It is the many possibilities of the photographic medium that have long intrigued photographer/artist Dale Bernstein, whose work graces the walls of the art gallery at the Arthur M. Glick JCC until March 2, 2012. The art gallery is free and open to the public during regular building hours: M-TH: 5:45 a.m.–10 p.m., F: 5:45 a.m.–p.m., SA-SU: 7 a.m.–7 p.m.

For Bernstein, a photograph should leave the viewer with questions. There should be an element of mystery, of depth, of hidden layers. Still photography gives the viewer the time to explore. It plays to the voyeur in all of us. During the mid-1980s, Bernstein had the privilege of working with some of the world's greatest photographers, including Irving Penn, Richard Avedon, Horst P. Horst, Arnold Newman and Robert Mapplethorpe, among others. After discovering an obsolete 19th-century photographic technique, the wetplate collodion process, Bernstein chose to focus on contemporary image-making while expressing his own vision.

For the last 20 years the New York-born Bernstein has operated his own commercial studio working for a large variety of corporate clients and advertising agencies.

Agudath Israel lauds court decision to uphold Indiana School Voucher Law

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 16, 2012 – In a strongly worded summary judgment, Marion County Superior Court Judge Michael Keele ruled on Friday that Indiana's Choice Scholarship Program does not violate the Indiana Constitution. The Choice Scholarship Program went into effect this summer and awards scholarships to low-income Hoosier students who can choose from public or private schools, including religious institutions.

School choice opponents – backed by the National Education Association – claimed that this violated several articles of the Indiana Constitution and sued to block students from participating. The program and its participating families were ably defended by Indiana's Solicitor General Tom Fisher and Bert Gall from the Institute for Justice.

The court rejected each of the voucher opponents' arguments and concluded that the program is "religion neutral, was enacted for the benefit of students not religious institutions or activities" and is based upon the "individual choice of each scholarship recipient's parents."

"This court decision reinforces what the nearly 4000 students in the Choice program already know – the true beneficiaries of school choice are students and their families," said Rabbi A.D. Working with a coalition of school choice supporters and parents from across the state, Agudath Israel advocated for the creation of the program when the (see Agudath Israel, page 7)

Fifth Avenue in Gary, had come in a few days early. She was going to bake her well-known-in-the-family special sweets for the dessert table. Alas, almost a calamity! There was no crème de menthe or crème de cacao for her secret recipes.

We loved our Aunt Vera not only for her culinary expertness, but also for her survivorship. Born in Russia, she was an only child. Her mother had died at an early age from diabetes. My aunt attended a Gymnasium, a sort of junior college, not usually available for Jewish students. In the early 1920's in America after marrying my uncle, my aunt became deathly ill with diabetes. Fortunately, insulin had just been discovered and her life was saved. When she died many decades later, it was at the bridge table doing what she liked best – winning.

Back at the wedding, somehow, the crèmes were gathered; the chuppah stood tall and erect; the rabbi was on time; the wedding took place and my married life began.

Before going any further, I must reminisce about one prophetic event. When my husband-to-be was courting me, and I lived with my parents, many times he was invited to dinner. My mother was a gourmet cook and the food was always outstanding.

One evening he lamented, "I want you to cook for me and I'll eat anything you make."

Little did he know my lack of culinary skills. I did my best. I opened a can of condensed tomato soup and scorched it. I didn't know what condensed meant. I also remember making coffee in a big dripolator. As I poured in the hot water, the whole pot disintegrated, came apart, and all the coffee grounds landed unceremoniously in the mug. He ate the burned soup; "drank" the thick liquid with a spoon – and deemed the meal a success! I decided then this might indeed be a future husband with merit.

I do notice, though, to this day, on every entree I serve him, he uses the ketchup bottle generously. He even pours it on "chop suey."

Little and big situations come up in a marriage. The little ones are more fun, though. Whenever I needed a little "by myself" time, I just "quietly" announced, I think I'll watch Masterpiece Theater – and I received all the free time I needed.

Sometimes subterfuge doesn't work – as I found out. I love ballet, I knew my husband did not, but wanting him to attend a performance, I told him we were going to see excerpts of a musical presentation. The first act was modern dance and that went over well. Unfortunately, when the curtain opened on the second act, a snow scene emerged along with a long parade of ballerinas in tutus. He put his head on his lap and groaned, "Oh, no, ballet!"

As I get involved in this subject, I realize there are a few bits and pieces of advice I can share.

1) Don't linger on touchy issues and do a Dr. Freud by telling your spouse: "Why did you say to me what you said two weeks ago on Friday at 2:19 in the afternoon?" Get over it.

2) What do you do when the relatives tell you how to live your lives? I took a scientific survey (three people) and asked them for their input. 66 2/3% of the respondents said they did just the opposite of what they were told; the other 33 1/3% said they usually just caved in.

And then there was another way: my husband's in-laws and my in-laws would give opinions. Of course we would listen. They meant well. My husband would say "uh huh, uh huh" and I would add" sounds good" then later, we would talk and figure it out. I think we wanted to make our own mistakes.

3) What if you have a spouse with revolving eyes (for someone else)? Our pediatrician used to say that there are those men he labeled as "married bachelors." If the cheater is itching to leave and no matter what you've tried to do, he wants to disappear, let him. Good riddance! It would be nice, though, before the slippery eel slithers off to lurid pastures, if he would introduce you to someone else.

Some couples with problems seek out a marriage counselor. Beware! How do you know how happy their marriages are? When all is disserted, dissected, analyzed, and all facets winded down, maybe the true answer to conjugal happiness is "Who Knows?"

Instead of advisors counseling you to use the "I love you's" all day long, sometimes sweet innuendos work fine, too.

One husband came home from work and told his wife that everything had gone wrong that day. His wife, remembering it was their wedding anniversary said, "Didn't something go right 25 years ago?"

The husband answered, "I must have been crazy when I married you."Then he paused, looked at her and said quietly, "The trouble is...I'm still crazy."

And finally, if the marriage is going to succeed, it will. Neither snow nor rain nor intrusive relatives or meaningful friends or the teenage years – or ballet will derail contented souls from forever togetherness on this planet or any other.

The best advice? Muddle through the best you can – and don't forget the ketchup bottle. By the way, who was that "crazy" husband of 25 years? Mine. **‡

After graduating from high school, she worked at various office jobs, as a freelance artist, and dress designer within the Chicago garment district.

Zelda later moved to Washington D.C. where she worked at the Department of Agriculture and Bureau of Land Economics, the Labor's Non-Partisan League, the Justice Department, Department of Labor, Department of State and the Defense Department. Zelda met her husband, the late Elliot Bold, in 1944 while working in Washington, D.C. They married in 1946 when he returned from the war. As an Economist, she retired from HUD as the Director, Area Economic and Market Analysis Division for Indiana region.

She received her BA from Roosevelt College in 1954 and her BFA from the Art Institute of Chicago in 1957. She designed clothing, hats and costumes in Chicago. As a freelance artist, she worked with a wide range of media and her work was featured in art shows and various galleries in the Chicago and Indianapolis areas. After retirement, she assisted her husband in his CPA firm until his death.

She was an active member of Congregation Beth-El Zedeck where she formed a hospital visitation group that continued for many years. She was a lifetime member of Hadassah. She supported national and international Jewish charities as well as many local charities.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Elliot Bold; parents; brother, Irving Don; sister, Mitzi Don Lehman; and niece, Bonnie Lehman.

She is survived by her brother, Hyman Don of Broomfield, CO; nieces and nephews, Arlene Lehman Baldwin of Niwot, CO, Suzanne Don Karbel of Woodland Hills, CA, Andrea Don Blaha of Santa Monica, CA, Shelley (Beverly) Don of Denver, CO, Robert Don of Denver, CO, Gregory (Gisele) Don of Calabasas, CA, and Donald (Marie) Lehman of Malibu, CA; and great-nieces and great-nephews, Shannon Blaha, Briana Blaha, Tanya Don, Brennan Don, Scott Karbel, Ethan Don and Max Blaha.

She will be greatly missed and remembered for her intellect, strength of character, love of art and devotion to her family, friends and faith. With the assistance of her friends and caregivers, Zelda was able to enjoy her last years the way she wanted to live.

Interment was at Shalom Memorial Park and Cemetery in Arlington Heights, IL on Oct. 11. A memorial service was held at the Kaufman-Schuchman Chapel, Congregation Beth-El Zedeck on Oct. 17. Donations may be made to Gleaners Food Bank, Mazon, Thrifty Threads, Alzheimer's Association or Hadassah. Arrangements were entrusted to Aaron-Ruben-Nelson Mortuary.

Jewish teens take on bullying in groundbreaking BBYO program

They were nearly 80 strong. They came from all across the region. They brought sleeping bags and stayed the night to speak out in solidarity and gain more awareness about an issue that all Americans should be concerned about. No, it wasn't Occupy Wall Street, or even Occupy Indianapolis... it was Occupy the ICC, a program that was conceived of and led by members of the Jewish youth group, BBYO, who took over the Mayerson JCC in Cincinnati on Saturday night, Jan. 21 to bring attention to bullying, a problem that affects many thousands of children and teens across the country and leads to numerous unnecessary suicides each year.

This overnight event included a wide variety of programs and began with an opportunity for the teens to join the entire Jewish community for a presentation by Israeli Ambassador to the United States, Michael Oren, who was already speaking in Cincinnati that night. Afterward, the group participated in a series of interactive and informative discussions on topics ranging from celebrities who have spoken out against bullying to an engaging session about how to handle different bullying scenarios, and an open forum which allowed participants to share their personal experiences with bullying. Other activities included sports in the gym, snacks in the J Café, and Laser Tag!

"The mix of meaningful programs and fun activities with other Jewish teenagers is what made this event so exciting and appealing," explained Matt Steinberg, BBYO City Director and Youth and Teen Director at the Mayerson JCC in Cincinnati. "The idea was born out of Cincinnati BBYO chapter boards; Mishpocha AZA (boys) and Ner Tamid BBG (girls) who wanted to have a fun event that would start the year off right.

Haim Solooki, 80, of Tamarac, Fla., a longtime member of Etz Chaim died Feb. 9, 2012. He is survived by his wife Betty, daughter Leah Solooki Marcovitz, a grandson, and brother Ayoob (Ana) Solooki. **‡

Lee Eisenberg, 91, of Camarillo, Calif., died on Feb. 11. She is survived by siblings Becky Profeta of Indianapolis, Morris Cohen of Florida, Leon Cohen of Sacramento, two children Michael and Renee, and several nieces and nephews.

BBYOers bring awareness to bullying.

But they also wanted to include a meaningful social action component, and felt bullying was an important topic that all teens could relate to. They knew that through a powerful program such as this, participants would feel empowered to make a difference themselves in the fight against bullying," he continued. "But the best part was, like all BBYO programs, this event was led by teens for teens, which made it very accessible and relatable for them. I am so proud of everyone who planned and executed Occupy the JCC, and am glad to be part of a youth organization that gives its members the freedom and opportunity to take ownership of their own events. It is so rewarding to see them succeed in such a big way. This was our first event of 2012," he added. "Just wait and see what we do next!"

"Infusing such powerful content into a fun-filled weekend is one of the many ways our region is making a name for itself," said Josh Rothstein, KIO (Kentucky-Indiana-Ohio) BBYO Regional Director. "It's exciting to see that BBYO is leading the way with this kind of innovative programming. The fact that teens from the other four cities in our region, Indianapolis, Dayton, Columbus, and Louisville, made the trip to Cincinnati just goes to show how moving (literally) something like this can be!"

The Occupy the JCC planning committee was made up of Cincinnati BBYO members from both the boys' Mishpocha AZA chapter and the girls' Ner Tamid BBG chapter, and included: Kelsey Bardach, Alex Burte, Kali Cohen, Mitchell Evans, Benji Kriner, Chase Kroeger, Marisa Levy, Herbert Meisner, Zach Samuelson, Joey Slovin, Alex Weisser, Hannah Wise and Sarah Wolf.

"Occupy the JCC was a great experience for all the old and new members. It was my first event and after going I knew that I wanted to come back," said Cory Harbatkin, a freshman at Mason High School."This was one of the biggest BBYO events Cincinnati has hosted in a long time, and it was such a success. It was great seeing friends from out of town, discussing how bullying affects high schoolers, and of course, spending the night at the JCC. It was a fantastic event from beginning to end," shared Alyssa Bardach, a senior at Cincinnati Country Day School.

"We are glad to be partnering with the Mayerson JCC to help take BBYO to new heights," said Pam Saeks, Director of Jewish Giving for The Mayerson Foundation in Cincinnati. "Our interest and involvement in this organization, on both the local and regional levels, is due in large part to it being the only non-denominational, pluralistic youth organization in all of the KIO region's five cities. That makes it uniquely positioned to attract both affiliated and unaffiliated teens, one of the most at-risk populations for falling off the Jewish path early on."

In addition to special events, parties, and Jewish social action- and holidayrelated programs, BBYO provides numerous leadership opportunities and offers many chances throughout the year for teens to attend regional, and even national and international conventions, summer camp and trips to Israel. BBYO is open to those who are currently in 8th grade and now eligible to fully participate in all programs and events and attend chapter meetings and conventions.

To learn more about BBYO, please contact Indianapolis' City Director, Kenny Lambert at klambert@jccindy.org. The KIO BBYO regional office is managed by The Mayerson Foundation. $

Local dining landmark tops national list

INDIANAPOLIS – Jan. 23, 2012 – WeddingWire, the nation's leading wedding website, is excited to announce that Indianapolis dining landmark, Hollyhock Hill has been selected to receive the prestigious WeddingWire Bride's Choice Award 2012 for BEST Ceremony & Reception Venue!

The esteemed annual awards program recognizes top wedding-related vendors from across the nation who demonstrate excellence in quality, service, responsiveness and professionalism. Unlike many industry awards that are selected by the organization bestowing them, the Bride's Choice Award's are determined by feedback and reviews from past newlywed clients.

The Bride's Choice Award recognizes the best wedding vendors across 20 service categories, from wedding venues to photographers, based on their overall professional achievements throughout the past year. This recognition places Hollyhock Hill in the top five percent of wedding professionals nationally, which is comprised of over 200,000 wedding professionals throughout the United States and Canada.

"While it is a true honor to be selected as the top Ceremony & Reception Venue, it is even more meaningful to us since it comes directly from our patron, to whom we are very grateful ", said Jay Snyder, proprietor of Hollyhock Hill. "Weddings create memories that will last a lifetime and we take our role in creating these memories very seriously", Snyder added.

"It is with great pleasure that we congratulate Hollyhock Hill for their continued professionalism and longstanding commitment to enriching the wedding planning experience for engaged couples," said Timothy Chi, WeddingWire CEO. "WeddingWire is thrilled to honor the success of this top-rated wedding professional", he added.

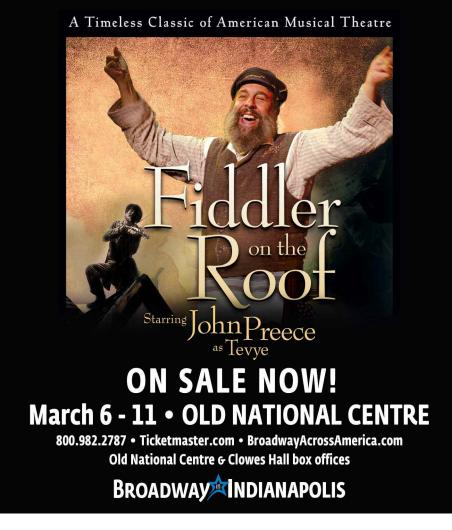

To learn more about the Bride's Choice Awards, please visit www.WeddingWire.com. For more information about Hollyhock Hill, please visit www.weddingwire.com/vendor/VendorViewStoreFront?mode=edi t&tab=profile.

WeddingWire is the nation's leading marketplace serving the $70 billion wedding industry, is the only online wedding planning resource designed to empower both engaged couples and wedding professionals.

Hollyhock Hill has been a tradition in "family-style" dining since 1928 and is consistently ranked among the top restaurants in the Midwest, famed for its superior "county-style" cuisine, high standards of service and unique ambiance. Hollyhock Hill is a premiere destination for celebrating special occasions and was recently named "America's BEST Fried Chicken" by Travel & Leisure Magazine!

Hadassah's 100th Anniversary

On March 22, Hadassah will celebrate its 100th birthday from coast to coast. Begun in 1912, Henrietta Szold, an American scholar was the founder of this miraculous organization. In Indianapolis the Chapter is honoring this event with a birthday bash at the home of Joani and Jeff Rothenberg.

Henrietta Szold's original idea for a women's Zionist organization came to her during a visit to Palestine with her mother, Sophie in 1909. Seeing the poor living conditions (filth, poverty and disease), Henrietta's mother suggested she and her study group back in NYC do something to improve the conditions they had seen first hand.

On Feb. 24, 1912 during the Purim season, 38 women met. Many of them were members of a Zionist study group. At that first meeting in NYC, they decided to name this group"Hadassah Chapter of the Daughters of Zion." The name Hadassah was significant because it was the Hebrew name for Esther, the heroine in the Purim story. In the Megillah Esther convinces the King to save the Jews, bringing an astonishing change of events. This parallels with the agenda of Hadassah in Israel and communities around the world, where we strive to continue the extraordinary work of Hadassah. And so Hadassah was born.

The official first meeting of Hadassah was March 22, 1912. On March 22, 2012 throughout the USA, Hadassah Chapters will gather together for our Centennial Celebration-Home Sweet Hadassah.

We hope you will join us and celebrate! For entertainment, we have engaged the musical ensemble, HOOSHIR, from Indiana University, Bloomington, and some surprises. Past Presidents will also be honored. For more information, please call the Hadassah Indianpolis office 317-475-4278.

Indy Jewish women's Israel trip

Last July, 15 Jewish women from Indianapolis went to Israel on a 10-day mission with the Jewish Women's Renaissance Project (JWRP). These women joined over 175 other women from around the country for a highly subsidized (they only paid for their airfare) trip of a lifetime. Of the 15 Indy women, many had never before been to Israel. Others had not been there for many years, long before they were wives and mothers. The women were from all Jewish denominations and each synagogue in the city was represented.

The Jewish Women's Renaissance Project (JWRP) was established in 2008 with the purpose to empower Jewish women to change the world. Its mission is to create a Jewish women's movement that inspires a renaissance of positive values that transforms women, their families, and their communities. The JWRP says the trips are "like a birthright for women" (Birthright sends Jewish young adults ages 18-26 on a fully subsidized trip to Israel).

2011 was the first year that Indianapolis sent a group on a JWRP mission. Along with Indianapolis were groups from Denver, Cincinnati, Kansas City, New York, New Jersey, and Florida.

The itinerary was a mix of lectures on Jewish values and Jewish history, sightseeing (Jerusalem's Old City, the mystical city of Tsafat, Masada, the Dead sea, rafting on the Jordan River, camel riding, Rachel's Tomb, Yad Vashem), with glimpses into modern Israel life (visit to an Army base and social action projects at soup kitchens and orphanages). There was also plenty of free time to catch up with friends and family, take in the local color, and shop, shop, shop! The merchants on Jerusalem's bustling Ben Yehuda Street were very sad to see the JWRP ladies go.

The 2011 trip was such a resounding success, that a second trip is planned for June 2012. Sponsored by the newly formed Indy Jewish Experience, the 16 allotted spots have already been filled. This summer's group will be joined with women from Denver, Baltimore, Toronto, El Paso, South Africa, Mexico City, and Costa Rica.

Last July, 15 Jewish women from Indianapolis went to Israel on a 10-day mission with the Jewish Women's Renaissance Project (JWRP).

The trip's itinerary included rafting on the Jordan River.
