Indianapolis Hadassah opens new year

The Indianapolis Chapter of Hadassah held its opening meeting on Sun., Sept. 26 at the Arthur M. Glick Jewish Community Center. The program, "What's New in Medicine," featured Doctors Anna Maria Storniolo and Zachary Hodes.

"For the first time ever, the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure will be held in Israel. Hadassah is a co-sponsor, along with the city of Jerusalem," she noted.

Hadassah is also planning its Centennial Campaign. The first and still the largest women's Zionist organization will turn 100 in 2012.

HHAI awarded emergency scholarship funds for families affected by economy

FUND

In August, the Hasten Hebrew Academy, Indianapolis' Jewish Day School, was recently selected to receive a grant from the Legacy Heritage Emergency Fund for Jewish Education, a scholarship fund aimed to assist families struggling to maintain their children's Jewish Education despite significant financial difficulties due to the current economic environment. The Legacy Heritage Emergency Fund for Jewish Education is an initiative sponsored by Legacy Heritage Programming LLC of New York.

Legacy Heritage Emergency Fund for Jewish Education is providing leveraged assistance to schools located in small and mid-sized Jewish communities across the United States. These funds are targeted to assist children in grades 6-12 from families who have recently experienced a significant change in employment status (e.g., one or both parents have lost jobs or were significantly downgraded, as a result of the challenges in the current economic climate).

Legacy Heritage Programming LLC is a division of Legacy Heritage Fund Limited, a nonprofit foundation. Legacy Heritage Fund's mission is to build a better world by supporting Jewish causes across the globe. The foundation supports philanthropic grants in many areas, including education, social welfare, healthcare and scientific research. The foundation's involvement in community and civic interests worldwide is a reflection of its values and vision.

The Hasten Hebrew Academy is a Jewish coeducational school whose purpose is to educate students of the entire Indianapolis Jewish community from preschool through the eighth grade.

The mission of the school is to create a learning environment that fosters the religious, social and academic growth of all students. Because the progress of each student is valued highly, great efforts are made to assure suitable learning goals for everyone. All students are encouraged to work toward producing at maximum potential. In pursuit of academic excellence, we emphasize basic skills, higher-order thinking and life-long learning.

Together as a community of learners, we promote growth in knowledge and identification with Jewish traditions. Through our programming and classroom instruction we instill in our students a spiritual bond and a strong sense of commitment to the State of Israel.

By nurturing a love of learning, we seek to develop responsible, ethical and caring Jewish adults and American citizens of the future.

Lesson 1

Choices, Choices: The Ethics of Patient Autonomy

The modern medical age offers hope for many dire medical situations, but does so at a price. As medical intervention increases, quality of life often decreases. This lesson examines Jewish perspectives on pursuing medical care, as well as declining it. Is it ever acceptable, or even preferable, to simply rely on faith, prayer, and one's own resources? How does Judaism justify medical intervention? And is it an obligation or a choice? May other family members force us to seek treatment that we do not want? Do our personal preferences and values hold any weight? And does the same hold true for children? This lesson examines the ethics of issues involving patient autonomy within the modern health care system.

Lesson 2

Becoming a Parent: The Ethics of Assisted Reproduction

Many couples struggle with infertility. In their efforts to bear a child, they are often cast into the complicated ethical web of the new reproductive technologies, many of which call into question the very definition of parent. In the age of sperm donation, egg donation, and surrogacy, can a child have more than two parents? How is Jewishness determined? How does Judaism look at "designer babies?" Can we pre-select the gender of the child to match parent preferences or to prevent genetic illnesses? How far must one go in the quest for biological children, and what recourse is there for those who are unable to bear children of their own?

Lesson 3

I Have a Secret: The Ethics of Confidentiality

A basic presumption of modern medical practice is that patients have a right for their medical history to be kept confidential unless they explicitly waive those rights (such as in allowing records to be reviewed by an insurance company). What happens, however, when those records contain information that might impact other family members? May a man hosting an incurable communicable

The odds of each Centennial Celebration Entrant selecting both envelopes containing the $10,000 and/or $100,000 prize messages are 1 in 225. All monetary prizes will be paid in a one-time lump sum after proper compliance with the Official Rules and providing of all requested information has been verified. $100,000 Centennial Celebration Promotion

LIZTON, IN—As part of State Bank of Lizton's 100 year celebration, the bank employees have compiled a history book and a cookbook, hosted First Fridays, and are currently in the beginning of a $100,000 Centennial Celebration Promotion.

It all began with a $10,000 investment from local business people and community members, and 100 years later, State Bank of Lizton has grown to a financial institution with over $360,000.000 in assets and strong community ties. In April of this year, the history book was given to shareholders and employees. It includes pictures, documents, and stories about the bank that served the needs of its agricultural customers in 1910, and continues to serve its communities with the lat-any prize unless and until the Entrant's eligibility has been verified. Each winner consents to the use of his or her name, likeness and/or photograph in any publicity, promotion, or advertising by State Bank of Lizton or its agencies without further compensation. Prizes are not assignable or transferable; merchandise prizes are not redeemable for cash. Odds of being selected as a Centennial Celebration Entrant depend upon the number of entries received. By submitting an entry, Entrants agree to release and hold harmless the State Bank of Lizton and its affiliates, subsidiaries, directors, officers, employees and its advertising and promotional agencies from any and all liability for any injuries loss or damage of any kind arising from or in connection with the Promotion.

est in bank technology and good neighbor customer service.

Identifying another way to give back to its communities in a meaningful way, a committee of bank employees compiled a cookbook from recipes received from co workers, shareholders, customers and others in the community. When all the cookbooks are sold, $13,000 will have been donated to area education foundations for use in promoting financial literacy. Cookbooks are available in every State Bank of Lizton lobby and at various community events.

Join employees on November 5 for yet another fun First Friday event. Guests have enjoyed the various themes, food, fun and giveaways. Every Friday in December will celebrate the bank's birthday month.

And the most exciting event for the end of the year is the $100,000 Centennial Celebration Promotion. State Bank of Lizton is offering the chance to win $100,000! Shapiro's delivers to Park Regency Shapiro's Deli Catering Division has initiated a new concept at the Park Regency Senior Living Facility in Indianapolis. Jay Slavin, catering manager at Shapiro's Deli, reached out to the facility administrators, who were excited to add Shapiro's Night to their monthly social calendar.

On the first Tuesday of every month, residents choose some of their favorite items from the Shapiro's Deli menu. They can invite family members or friends to join them for a great meal from the well-known deli. Shapiro's brings in their popular sandwiches, hot comforting entrees, and mouth-watering desserts for a dinner that brings back fond memories. Many residents have spent their lives in Indianapolis, where Shapiro's is a kosher-style dining landmark.

This concept is really catching on and growing in popularity. Every month the participation is growing and Shapiro's plans to add other independent living facilities to the calendar as well. Shapiro's Catering Division is focused on bringing their unique dining experience to the community. Visit their website at www.shapiros.com.

I am becoming a bar mitzvah

By Mitch Frankovitz

I am becoming a bar mitzvah during the holiday of Sukkot. At this time we build small huts, called sukkot. We are to sit in the sukkah filled with the fruit and produce of the harvest. The sukkah is constructed so that we can look up and see the sky. The festival teaches us to pay attention to nature's gifts and to say thank you. In fact, the American holiday of Thanksgiving is taken from the biblical festival of Sukkot.

Sometimes we take what we have for granted; we forget to say thank you. On this Shabbat, I want to say thank you for many things. I am grateful for my family, their teachings and their love. I am thankful for my friends and the time we spend together.

There were times during my studying for my bar mitzvah that I wanted to give up, but I never did. I am thankful for all those people who believed in me and told me to keep going. Sukkot celebrates the many years our people wandered in the desert. They never gave up. It wasn't easy, but they kept going until they reached the Promised Land; I am glad that I never gave up. I am proud to become a bar mitzvah.

I especially want to thank all of those people who helped me to reach this point. Rabbis Dennis and Sandy Sasso have taught me about my Jewish heritage. Cantors Giora Sharon and Judy Meyersberg have helped me chant Hebrew and lead the service. My religious school and Hebrew school teachers have all played a role in my studies. My cousin, Dan Lande, has been a special friend and teacher during these months of preparation. Thank you all for helping me reach this important milestone in my life.

I want to thank my grandparents, Grandpa Israel and Grandma Fern, for coming from Toronto to be with me today. I did not know my Grandpa Morris, but I have heard many amazing stories about him. He and my grandma were holocaust survivors. Without my grandpa and grandma's courage I would not be here to-

Mitchell David Frankovitz was bar mitzvahed at Congregation Beth-El Zedeck on Sept. 24-25, 2010. Mitch is the son of Ron Frankovitz and Judith Frankovitz. Mitch's grandparents, Fern Frankovitz and Israel Gruenspan, came from Toronto for this simcha. There were about 215 adults and children who came to the Fountains in Carmel to help Mitch celebrate his bar mitzvah.

day. I am so grateful that they survived that terrible period of our history.

Thank you dad for always making sure I learn about Judaism. Thank you, mom and dad, for teaching me to be a good person. You have taught me about responsibility and helping people who do not have as much as we do.

This season is called "the time of our rejoicing." Today I am happy to become a responsible member of the Jewish people. Shabbat Shalom and Hag Sameach!

disease withhold that information from his wife? Does a woman willing to donate a kidney to a man she presumes to be her father have the right to know that in fact, he is not related to her at all? Do children have the right to know they are carriers of a particular disease, or may the parent keep that information private? This lesson looks at some ways of balancing the harm to the individual whose privacy is invaded against the need to provide family members with vital health information.

Dorothy (Zweig) Katz, 91

Dorothy (Zweig) Katz, of Indianapolis, formerly of Gary and Crown Point, born Sept. 1, 1919, died on Sept. 11, 2010. She was a member of Congregation Beth Israel in Munster (formerly Temple Beth El in Gary), Temple Beth El Sisterhood, Hadassah and Congregation Beth El Zedeck (Indianapolis).

Dorothy (Zweig) Katz

Dorothy was a graduate of Lew Wallace High School and attended Indiana University and Purdue University. During the years her husband, the late A. Martin Katz, served as Mayor of Gary, Dorothy's primary focus was restoring the beauty and allure of Gary's lakefront landmarks, the Marquette Park Pavilion and its surrounding sand dunes and natural waters. Dorothy undertook to unite the Gary business community to restore and preserve the Marquette Park Pavilion to its original grandeur and enlisted the manpower and talent of the Gary Park Department and United States Marine Corps Reserve Unit stationed at the foot of Lake Street to restore the surrounding grounds and pedestrian bridges. In 1966 she was commended by our nation's first lady, Lady Bird Johnson, for the legacy of that beautification project.

Dorothy's zeal for art led her to focus on her own talent as an artist, which she diligently studied and pursued for many years. Most importantly, Dorothy was a loving and devoted wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother. To her family her life is best measured by the way she enriched their lives with an attitude of selflessness, integrity, love, and encouragement.

She was preceded in death by her husband of 53 years, A. Martin Katz; her parents, Sadie Zweig and Philip Zweig; and brothers, Harold Zweig and Isadore Zweig. Survived by her sister, Estelle Moss of Reno, NV; her children, J. Michael (Marlene) Katz of Munster, IN, Jody Lynn Folloder of Houston, TX, Dr. Richard D. (Judy) Katz of Crown Point, and Ronald M. Katz of Indianapolis; 12 grandchildren, Jessica Shoriak of Munster; Whitney Katz of Chicago; Audrey (Mike) McCarthy of Austin, TX; Justin (Tina) Folloder of Houston; Courtney Folloder of Houston; Clayton (Kat) Folloder of Houston; Philip Katz and Hannah Katz, both of Crown Point; Benjamin Katz, Kyle Katz, Meredith Katz and Ariana Katz, all of Indianapolis; 2 great-granddaughters, Ariel Shoriak of Munster, and Jemma Folloder of Houston; several nieces and nephews.

Graveside services and internment were held at Temple Beth El Cemetery, in Portage, Ind., on Tues., Sept. 14, 2010. In lieu of flowers, the family has requested memorial donations be made in Dorothy's memory to Hadassah.

Liz Goldsmith celebrates 90

Liz Goldsmith celebrated her 90th birthday in style at the IMA Garden Terrace with family and friends. The elegant party took place on Oct. 9, two days after her actual birthday. Some of her family came from Denver; Los Alamos, NM; New York City; St. Paul, Minn.; Cincinnati; and Kansas City, MO. Her son, Michael Goldsmith, and his wife, Linda, were the party planners. Heather Ramsey's lovely voice made beautiful music, and David Meek accompanied on keyboard. The scrumptious dinner was prepared by Kahn's Catering. Liz told the story that she was born two months prematurely, and in those days there were no incubators. At the suggestion of a nurse named Nettie George, her mother kept her in a shoe box and used olive oil and a light bulb to keep her warm.

as possessed by the devil, or otherwise evil. Jewish law, however, has long recognized this as a disease, and acknowledges both the limitations of responsibility that this state imposes, as well as the essential humanity of the mentally ill. Jewish law recognizes that there may well be islands of ability at the same time that limitations exist. It encourages the maximum participation possible of those with mental illnesses, while outlining the role the community must play in protecting their interests. The lesson also considers the integration of individuals who may suffer from mental retardation, and the value of engaging them actively in

Lesson 5

The Gift of Life: The Ethics of Organ Donation

Hundreds of thousands of people find their lives hanging in the balance as they hope for the gift of life in the form of a vital organ such as a heart, lung, or kidney. By receiving an organ, they are literally given a new leaf on life. Yet there is a tremendous shortage of available organs. Does Jewish law allow the donation of organs, either from a live donor or one who is recently deceased? Might it go further, actively encouraging or even morally compelling one to donate under certain circumstances? Conversely, if our bodies are not our own, do we even have the authority to give a body part away? This lesson provides a nuanced and compassionate look at the sensitive ethical issues governing organ donation.

October 13, 2010 IN 13

Lesson 6

Rolling the Dice: The Ethics of Medical Experimentation

Often, people with rare or incurable illnesses consider untested experimental treatment, gambling that they will be cured. May one participate in an experimental treatment with no guarantee of success that also has the danger of shortening life? Can we define the allowable odds? Does it matter that participating in this experimental treatment will provide important knowledge that will be helpful in curing others? The lesson considers other ethical issues related to experimentation such as the ethics of stem cell research.

CRITICS CORNER

A Knight to remember at Beef & Boards

By Charlie Epstein

I have seen many, many productions of Lerner and Loewe's extravaganza musical Camelot. By far the one at the Beef & Boards Dinner Theatre was the best. So many elements of good theater made this production so enjoyable.

The cast was superb with Douglas E. Stark again performing the role of the legendary King Arthur with complete authority. Krista Severeid played and sang the role of the beautiful Queen Guinevere with energy. Her real-life husband Tony Lawson performed the role of the blustering knight Sir Galahad with verve and gallantry reminding me of Gaston in Beauty and the Beast. His conceit was as huge as his glorious voice. It is of no wonder that Tony Lawson is my favorite Beef & Boards performer.

The ever humorous Jeff Stockberger rounded out the principal cast as he enjoyably played two parts, the magical Merlyn and the comical King Pellinore. Naturally the comical King was the juiciest of the two parts. He even had a dog to aid him in his comedy.

Eddie Curry had the daunting task of making the triangle love story and the political views make sense.

This was the first time I fully comprehended all the events on and off stage. This was due to the magnificent direction of Eddie Curry. He had plenty of help, too. The elaborate costuming was from the road show of Camelot. The sparse set was designed by Michael Layton, but it was very effectively lit by Lighting Designer Ryan Koharchik.

This grand musical, originally directed on Broadway by Moss Hart, is based upon T. H. White's The Once and Future King.

Camelot reminds me of an incident that happened while I was visiting England. The tour guide was busily explaining why "King Arthur never lived but was just a folk legend. However if he did live this where he was buried."

Next at Beef & Boards Dinner Theatre is the debut of Irving Berlin's White Christmas starting Oct. 14. For more about Beef & Boards and tickets, go to www.beefandboards.com or call 317-872-9664.
